PREFACE

This is the second annual appearance of a publication which originated as a listing of research in progress reported to this office and printed in the summer issues of New York History for 16 years. In its present form, the list has been expanded to include the titles of work published during the year. This listing covers the 12 months from May 1, 1969, through April 30, 1970. A few copies of the 1968-69 listing remain available on request as of the time of publication.

Researchers interested in receiving blank forms for listing their work in progress or completed during the year starting May 1, 1970, may write to the Office of State History at any time. Forms will be sent near the end of the year to all officially appointed Local Historians, to historical societies, and to members of the College Conference on New York History.

Criteria for selecting material for inclusion may be most clearly expressed in terms of limits and exclusions:

(1.) Research in progress must be described to us briefly but clearly as to its scope and limits, and it should represent work beyond the normal or routine services of official Local Historians. Work listed 1 year is not repeated in subsequent listings until it is reported as completed.

(2.) Narratives or analyses of recent events are excluded unless they present data or perspectives unavailable in journalistic accounts and commentaries.

(3.) Projects and publications are excluded if they deal only incidentally with New York, or primarily with the activities of New Yorkers unrelated to the State's history.

(4.) Reprints and new editions are selected for their breadth of interest and availability.

(5.) Juvenile literature on the State's past has not been systematically included.

(6.) Genealogical publications and projects have not been listed.

(7.) Audiovisual materials are listed in another recent publication from the Office of State History and the Bureau of Secondary Curriculum Development, Sights and Sounds of New York History.

Within these limits, the variety of activity is impressive. The 12 classifications listed in the Table of Contents only partially outline the breadth of recent efforts. The 24 new and reprinted works on Long Island history, for example, are evident only to the browser through several classifications. And there is no separate category to highlight such unusually valuable finding aids as Manuscripts for Research (M-15). But perhaps browsing ought not to be discouraged entirely. It can be endlessly serendipitous.

For their assistance in this compilation, the editor is grateful to Jennifer Chatfield of the State Museum, Robert Funk of the State Science Service, Adele Leonard of the State Library, and Paul Scudiere and Lawrence Yakaitis of the Office of State History.
